The song describes the story of Kalpavriksha (tree of Kalpataru) and Devi Radha (goddess of love). The tree represents the Lord Vishnu and the Goddess of love is Radha. They were sleeping and the Goddess awoke first. She became wet with the dew from the tree. She sat next to the tree and asked the tree to wash her. The tree appeared to obey the Goddess and took some of the soil from the ground and washed the Goddess and returned the soil to the ground. This story is symbolic of the famous Kalpavriksha, the tree of Life or Kalpataru tree, which has a flower and the fruit of a thousand names.
