Free→Plan→Build→Deploy→Monitor→Maintain Trello's team collaboration tool is second to none. The app's integration with Slack and GitHub made working in a remote environment even more enjoyable. In conclusion, Trello is easy to use and understand. The combination of straightforward tasks, simple UI and good documentation make this tool indispensable for projects with short timelines. As a Trello user and a fan, I wish it all the best. Stay tuned for future stories and hear about how a new user can set up and run Trello in a day. There's a great new readme page that explains how to install Trello on an Android device. Activity of neonatal, preterm, human, and mouse fibroblast cell lines in the absence of serum. The activity of three human fibroblast cell lines (HFF-SV40, HFF-WI-38, and HFF-4000), one preterm human fibroblast cell line (pre-HFF), one human fetal (HFF-18I), and two mouse fibroblast cell lines (3T3-TK1 and 3T3-SV1) was determined in culture medium containing 1% fetal calf serum. The cultures were harvested at confluence and cell number, protein concentration, activity of an enzyme, alkaline phosphatase, and protein content (mg/ml) was determined at various time intervals up to 7 days. The activity of all cell lines in serum-free medium was within a factor of 2 of that found in serum-containing medium and was unaffected by the age of the cells in culture. Alkaline phosphatase activity of both the pre-HFF and the pre-HFF-18I cells in serum-free medium increased to a level at least 50% higher than in medium containing 10% serum by 4 days of culture. The cells may thus be capable of growth and development in an environment without serum. The low protein content of the cells in the absence of serum may, however, require addition of a medium supplement for growth. The activity of the 3T3-TK1 and 3T3-SV1 cell lines was maintained within a factor of 2 of that of the cells in 10% serum.
